PONDER NEW GRAIN SAVING PLAN IN U. S.

PROGRAM ADVANCED BY POULTRY RAISERS TURNED DOWN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21. (UP)—The nation's poultry producers today were working out a new grain-saving program which they hope will persuade President Truman's food committee to scrap chickenless and turkeyless Thursdays.

Committee Chairman Charles Luckman last night rejected the industry's first substitute program on grounds there was no guarantee it would save as much grain as poultryless days.

But he said he still was open-minded on the idea of doing away with such special food-saving days if the poultry and feed people are able to work out a program which will save just as much grain.

The country producers said people should be encouraged to eat more—not less—poultry. They said millions of grain-consuming chickens and turkeys are damaged up on farms for lack of a market.

An industry spokesman said the poultry people were overhauling their program to meet Luckman's objections. The new program, he said, will spell out exactly how much grain it will save for friendly European nations.

The poultry producers will meet with Luckman again at 3:30 p. m. EST. Feed manufacturers also will be present. But they indicated they will stand pat on their present program to conserve some 30,000,000 bushels of grain.

Eggless and meatless menus apparently were not at stake. Luckman said neither the fowl nor feed men mentioned eggs. There never has been any disposition to eliminate meatless days from the food program.

There were indications the poultry and feed men themselves were split on a program. The poultry spokesman said his people will try to sell the committee on their plan and let the feed manufacturers work out their own arrangements.

The poultrymen's program will feature elimination of certain grains and substitutions for others. Luckman wanted the feed men to quit using wheat entirely. They said that was impossible because some areas depend almost entirely on wheat feed.

The poultrymen's original program was aimed at saving 4,250,000 bushels of grain a week. They did not estimate what their new program will save.

Luckman has not indicated how much grain he believes the poultry and feed industries should be able to save. But he has emphasized that most of the 100,000,000 bushels of grain he hopes to save must be conserved on the farm level.

Meanwhile, an Agriculture Department official said this country now is sure to hit its original export goal of 470,000,000 bushels of grain. But he said it still is questionable whether shipments will hit President Truman's new goal of 570,000,000 bushels.

TROPICAL STORM DAMAGES BERMUDA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21. (UP)—The new tropical hurricane which left an estimated $1,000,000 damage in Bermuda was reported about 320 miles north-northeast of the resort island early today and ships in north Atlantic lanes were advised to proceed with caution.

A 4 a. m. EST Weather Bureau advisory said the hurricane was believed to be moving north-east at about 25 miles an hour, with winds of hurricane force extending for 50 miles from the center.

Hollywood Full
Of Communists
Actor Asserts

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21 (UP)—Actor Adolphe Menjou asserted today that Hollywood is honeycombed with Communists who "rigidly" follow the Moscow party line.

The fashionably dressed portrayer of Debonair male movie roles told the House Un-American Activities Committee in the second day of public hearings on Communism in Hollywood that the movie capital is a hot bed of un-American influences.

Committee Counsel Robert E. Stripling asked if "Communists in Hollywood follow the party line laid down in Moscow." "Rigidly," Menjou replied.

"It's reflected in all their activities then?" Stripling asked. "Yes, sir," Menjou replied. Menjou listed what he called Communist-front organizations active in Hollywood. They included, he said, the independent citizens committee of arts, sciences and professions, the political action committee, and American youth for democracy.

Menjou described as an example of Communist activities in Hollywood a jurisdictional strike of painters, carpenters and set erectors which has been going on for more than a year.

City Election Interest Lags

With the city election two weeks from today, interest in the municipal balloting apparently is at a very low ebb.

Hardly any talk is heard regarding "this or that candidate" which is rather unusual with voting time so near at hand.

As result of the present indications, local party leaders on both the Republican and Democratic tickets are predicting a light vote on Tuesday, Nov. 4th. However, interest may pick up during the next twelve or fourteen days and there may be a larger turnout at the polls than is expected at the present.

Nathaniel Huckleberry, a veteran of both World Wars, heads the GOP ticket as candidate for mayor. Harold W. Stewart, high school teacher, is the Democrat aspirant for the mayoralty position.

CITY COUNCIL HELD REGULAR SESSION MON.

CLAIMS WERE ALLOWED AND BUILDING PER- MITS GRANTED

The city council held a routine business session Monday evening with all members present with the exception of Councilman Kenneth Bryan. City Clerk-Treasurer Jane G. Black was present after being absent because of illness.

The claim ordinance was presented by Councilman Craver and totaled $1,616.12. Permits were granted to B. Andrews to excavate for a sewer in the alley at 313 E. Hanna street.

To Ed. S. Carlin to build addition to storeroom at 17 south Indiana street, costing about $200. It is to come within the fire zone and will be fire proof.

The question of the gates erected at the Pennsylvania crossing on Bloomington street was discussed. It seems that train crews pulling up near enough to the crossing to work the gates and then stopping is causing confusion and a blocking of traffic. The train crews will be instructed to operate the gates by hand, so that traffic will not be tied up. Cases of traffic driving around the gates was reported because of the long delay in them being down.

In a few cases cars passing under them have been caught as they came down. The question of students riding motor scooters on east Anderson street "side-walk to the Deke house, was also reported and police will check it.

The matter of introducing the new zoning ordinance came up and because of a change in the 1947 law on this matter, the work will be started all over and will be completed by the end of the year. The Zoning Commission is made up of Gifford Black, Fred O'Hair, Kenneth Eitel and J. T. Christie. This board will work with the council in zoning the city under the new statute.

IS OPENED BY KING GEORGE

MEMBERS HEAR TRADI- TIONAL ADDRESS BY SOVEREIGN

LONDON, Oct. 21. (UP)—King George VI opened a new session of Parliament today with the announcement that the Labor government intends to curb the remaining powers of the conservative House of Lords and nationalize the gas industry this year.

The King's traditional speech was written for him by the Labor government. It showed that the moderate-led cabinet had yielded at the last minute to left-wing laborite demands that the government destroy any possibility of the lords wrecking the socialization program.

The King did not mention the great iron and steel industry, basis of Britain's economy, which apparently meant that the Labor government had decided not to put it under government control before 1949.

Nor did he say just how the Labor government proposed to curb the lords. He said only that "legislation will be introduced to amend the parliament act of 1911."

This act forbade the lords to interfere with financial legislation approved by Commons—the elected body of parliament—but allowed them to delay other legislation for upwards of two years.

In the case of iron and steel, a subject dear to the hearts of the left-wing Laborites, the lords might delay nationalization being made effective until after the 1950 general election. If the Conservative party of Winston Churchill got into power then, it could kill the measure altogether in Commons.

Except for its extreme left wing, the Labor party does not want to nationalize iron and steel now, lest it interfere with the "export or die" program.

Looking at Life

Erich Brandeis

It makes me boiling mad to think that when I weigh 156 pounds and consider myself pretty husky, a little bug, a million of whom would hardly tip the scale, can completely lick me.

And that little bug hasn't licked me alone, but also my wife and my doctor's wife and his two kids, and my dentist's sister and goodness knows how many more people in our village.

I don't know the little son-of-a-gun's scientific name, but even if I did I wouldn't give him the satisfaction of mentioning it, but he is commonly known as the intestinal flu bug.

He certainly has me down and I feel about as strong and as ambitious as a kitten.

I have a headache, and I ache all over, and my stomach makes a lot of funny noises—it sounds something like one of those modern boogie-woogie compositions—and I don't care whether I live or die.

The doctor says there's a mild epidemic of that intestinal flu going around. He gave me some medicine and told me to have a lot of rest and take no other nourishment except boiled milk, a baked potato and boiled custard.

Tonight we were going to have fresh roast pork with baked potatoes and red cabbage for dinner.

I was all keyed up for it and a friend of my wife had just given her a specially good recipe for it—with a lot of spices and a swell indigestible gravy—anyhow, even the thought of it turns my stomach.

Instead of the roast pork I am going to have a cup of milk, one baked potato and then go to bed, my wife informs me.

The worst part of it is that she feels as miserable as I do and would much rather stay in bed than be the gracious hostess and play little Miss Sunshine for the visitors.

But he have house guests, so she has to smile and dress up and be pleasant, and observe all the niceties dictated by Emily Post.

But a bug is a bug, and unfortunately I have never yet heard about the obligations of a host or hostess.

An top of everything else someone just called me on the phone and told me I must come along to the annual fashion award at the Waldorf-Astoria tonight. Full dress, I was told.

"But I live in the country," I replied, "and I don't keep my white tie and tails in the office."

"Why don't you just run home, dress, and come back?" was the reply. "It's going to be a wonderful and very swanky affair."

Imagine—a three-hour round trip to see a fashion show in full dress, full of intestinal flu!

That's the first laugh I have had today.

I think I feel a little better now.

Miss Rissler Bride Of Paul Jackson

The quite and impressive double-ring ceremony was used for the marriage of Miss Margaret Rissler, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Rissler and Paul Jackson, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jackson of Brazil at the First Baptist Church, Friday afternoon at 2 p. m.

The Rev. Dallas Rissler, cousin of the bride, officiated in the presence of relatives and friends of the church.

Bridal airs were beautifully rendered throughout the ceremony by James Runyan of Delavan, Illinois, who is a student of DePauw.

The bride was lovely in a very becoming street length dress of French blue wool. Her accessories were black and her shoulder corsage was white gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Lawler of Roachdale attended the couple.

Mrs. Lawler, a recent bride and sister of the groom, was attractively attired in a tan gabardine afternoon dress with black accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of pink carnations.

Mrs. Rissler and Mrs. Jackson, the mothers, chose to wear black. Their corsages were red roses. Mrs. Jackson graduated from Reelsville High School in 1941 and was a member of the 1944 graduating class of Union Hospital School of Nursing. For the past year and a half, she has been a popular and capable member of the nursing staff of Putnam County Hospital where she has held the position as surgery supervisor.

Mr. Jackson, a well known young man of Brazil attended the city schools and served with the Armed forces overseas.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple left on a short wedding trip to St. Louis after which they will be at home at 231 Detroit St. in Hammond, Indiana where the groom is employed.

Fourth Graders Studying Piano

The entire fourth grade at the Ridpath school is learning to play the piano. This experiment in class instruction was made possible by the cooperation of several persons, including T. A. Kleckner, superintendent of schools; Miss Wanda Stewart, supervisor of vocal music; Mrs. Ruby Hood, principal at the Ridpath school and Miss Dorothy Harris, the teacher of the fourth grade.

Miss Leah Curnutt, assistant professor of Music Education and piano at DePauw University, is teaching the class at no expense to the school system. "The idea is new and we are interested in these trends in education," said Mr. Kleckner. "By trying it at one school we can evaluate the method on the basis of experience," he continued. Several of the larger cities such as Pasadena, Cincinnati, Cleveland and Des Moines have adopted the method and have licensed piano teachers on the teaching staff.

Twelve children from the Ridpath school have been selected to take part in a demonstration of the piano class to be presented before the music section of the Indiana State Teacher's Association at Shortridge High School in Indianapolis at 3:00 o'clock on Thursday afternoon. Miss Curnutt will speak on "Advancement and Enrichment Through Piano Classes." At the close of her talk the children will present a thirty minute class lesson. Pupils who will participate include Suzanne Frazier, Kay Thompson, David Fritzinger, Melinda Fuller, Mary Ann Miller, Karen Ann Hill, John Bridges, Larry Pitts, Rex Godfrey, Randall Collins, Sue Torr and Joe Parker.

Mrs. Frank Fritzinger, Mrs. Harry Godfrey and Forest Fuller plan to accompany the children and assist in the transportation to Indianapolis. Miss Mildred Rount, a graduate student at DePauw and assistant to Miss Curnutt will also accompany the group and participate in the demonstration.
